About

International Business University started with the vision to establish an independent teaching-oriented and student-centered university in Canada.

In 2015, a founding group of academics and business people came together to make this vision a reality. Right from the start, the intent was to establish a university specializing in business education with a global perspective encompassing businesses in Canada and around the world.

After extensive consultations with educational experts and business representatives, the group prepared innovative proposals to establish the university and its inaugural degree in 2019. Ontario's Post Secondary Education Quality Assessment Board (PEQAB) considered the group's proposals in June 2020, approving the application for a university title and the first of its programs.

Ontario's Minister of Colleges and Universities granted final consent on December 4, 2020, making IBU the first homegrown independent university ever to be established in the province.

The logo for IBU, consisting of the letters 'IBU' in a bold, dark blue, sans-serif font.The word 'About' written in a white, cursive script font, positioned vertically to the right of the 'IBU' logo.

IBU announced in March 2023 that it met all of Ontario's International Student Program (ISP) requirements to be recognized and approved as a Designated Learning Institution (DLI) by the Canadian Government (DLI# O282326631372)

IBU is Toronto's first independent, not-for-profit university to provide this opportunity to international students. DLI accreditation is awarded to educational institutions that meet the strict requirements of ISP regulations for granting a study permit. This reflects the university's commitment to providing international students with a world-class education and workforce development opportunities

In April 2023, IBU receives the approval of the MBA Program in Technology, Innovation, and Entrepreneurship. Endorsed and supported by IBU's Board of Governors and Program Advisory Council the MBA will focus on the context of business, trends shaping the environment, the conceptualization of research problems, effective communication, solution formulation, legal and ethical considerations, and understanding a complex business environment

We believe that each student at IBU will become a success story in their own right.

Scope OF THE HANDBOOK

We created this handbook to provide you with an overview of Ontario, Canada and your new life in Toronto as a student of International Business University (IBU).

It gives you some basic information pertaining to your transition to a new country and new academic setting. Further, it gives you clarity on procedures and practices of IBU and the Honours BCom program.

This handbook is for both on campus and on-line students. Policies are outlined in the Academic Calendar that is available online. The school makes every effort to keep all documents accurate and up to date; in the event of a discrepancy the Academic Calendar shall take precedence.

It is important to your success as a student that you make yourself familiar with these documents and know where to access information.

Your participation in the Student Orientation session will also assist you in knowing how to access information. Best of luck in your educational pursuits!

CANADA

Canada became a country in 1867 when three British colonies –Canada, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia– joined together as the Dominion of Canada. Today Canada is an independent nation with 10 provinces and 3 territories. Canada is a constitutional monarchy and member of the British Commonwealth. Canada has three levels of government: federal, provincial/territorial and municipal or regional.

ONTARIO

Ontario is part of central Canada and the largest province by population with more than one third of Canada's population. Ontario is the fourth largest province by size, but it is still very large-twice the size of France and nearly one third of the size of India. The province stretches from the Ottawa River valley in the east, the edge of the prairies in the west, the Great Lakes in the south, and Hudson's Bay in the north. Most Ontarians live in urban centers near the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River. Ottawa, the capital city of Canada, is on the Ottawa River. Toronto is Canada's largest city, and the fourth largest in North America-6 million people live in the Greater Toronto Area (GTA).

LIVING IN ONTARIO

Ontario is a large province with many cultures and traditions. Every community in Ontario is unique, from big cities to small towns, but this guide will give you a brief introduction to life in the province.

CLIMATE

Ontario has four distinct seasons with cold winters and warm summers, but the weather varies from location to location. Ontario's climate is influenced by the Great Lakes, which make the weather unpredictable and quick changing. Ontarians must check the weather forecast every day to make sure they are prepared!

WINTER

Winter begins around October in Northern Ontario and late November or December in Southern Ontario. It lasts until March in the south and April in the north. Temperatures can drop far below freezing and snow sometimes accumulates into large snow banks. When the temperature goes up, the streets become full of slush. However, life in Canada does not stop in winter. Ontarians put on their winter boots, warm coats, hats, gloves and scarves and go about their day.

SUMMER

June to August are the summer months. Summers in Ontario can sometimes be hot and humid, especially in larger cities. However, the daily temperature can change from quite cool in the mornings to very hot in the afternoon.

FALL

Fall brings cooler temperatures, lots of wind and both rainy and sunny days. Fall is also the beginning of the new school year and the harvest season. Leaves change colour to orange and red before falling from the trees—which is how the season gets its name.

SPRING

Spring is often very rainy and lasts from March to June—but can feel much shorter. Sometimes there is winter weather in late March and summer conditions in late May. In fact, in the spring, weather can change from summer conditions one day to winter conditions the next.

CULTURAL EVENTS AND ACTIVITIES

Ontario is home to many historic sites and cultural attractions. From Niagara Falls to Fort York to Parliament Hill, you can learn about Ontario's history and culture wherever you live. Many museums, galleries, parades, celebrations and festivals, both large and small, are free of charge or may have a small fee.

Some sites and events have discounts for children, youth, students and seniors. Some events, such as New Year's Eve fireworks, Maple Syrup festivals, Doors Open tours, Gay Pride parades, Canada Day celebrations, and Santa Claus parades occur all over the province, but some special events are unique to their community.

COMMUNITY CENTRES AND RECREATION

Cities and towns in Ontario have many social and recreational opportunities. Most communities have a place where community groups can meet. Many community centers also have skating arenas, swimming pools, gyms and sports fields. Some facilities and programs can be used for free while others have fees or require registration. Some programs are open to everyone, and other programs require advanced registration.

Your Faith, YOUR WAY.

PLACES OF WORSHIP:

Canadians have the freedom to practice their own religion. While Ontario is a secular society, many Ontarians express their faith by gathering in churches, synagogues, mosques, temples and other places of worship

HINDUISM

BAPS Shri Swaminarayan Mandir

ISLAM

Imadul Islamic Centre

CHRISTIANITY

Church of Redeemer

CATHOLICS

St. Luke's Catholic Church

Many faith communities also run community centres with programs for both their congregation and their local community. Faith groups also meet on college and university campuses in Ontario.

While for some people the process may be brief and hardly noticeable, for others it may be associated with disorientation, stress, confusion, a desire to remain withdrawn, loneliness, anger, frustration, fear, homesickness or depression. Some may experience physical problems (fatigue, illness, upset stomach, insomnia, headaches, etc.).

Stage 3

“Cultural Adaptation” During this stage you begin to accept your new surroundings and start to feel more comfortable. You start participating in the local culture, learning the language, making friends and enjoying life.

Coping With TRANSITION

IBU
Centre for Sustainable Business

Empowering the Next Generation of Leaders:

The International Business University Centre for Sustainable Business

The International Business University (IBU) based in Toronto is excited to commence the launch of its Center for Sustainable Business, which will foster research and knowledge-sharing on sustainable business practices. In support of the national goal to reach net zero greenhouse gas emissions, the Center will empower collaboration among students, academics, experts, and business leaders. The mission of this organization is to engage students and other stakeholders through a range of research and knowledge-sharing events to build up sustainability competence.

The end of 2022 and the beginning of 2023 could not be a better example of why responsible leadership is necessary for business: the economic crisis, health issues, supply chain, and labor challenges are pervasive and have been exacerbated recently by extreme weather events. Managing a company is no longer just about competing in the market, it is a much more complex task. It's about creating value for customers, employees, communities, and countries, but it's also about taking a high level of responsibility. Because the companies of the future have to formulate and implement innovative sustainability strategies for the sake of today, tomorrow, and the day after. Against this background, IBU created the Center of Sustainable Business, whose main objective is to give students the interdisciplinary knowledge necessary to become successful leaders in the future.

Through collaboration and interaction with many stakeholders, the Center provides IBU students with a unique opportunity to learn from and interact with leaders in academia and business. Students will be exposed to an interdisciplinary approach to social and environmental sustainability, including topics such as environmental science, green finance, and social entrepreneurship. This will encourage them to look at business performance and change from new angles.
